

Certified Surgical Technologist (CST) Exam Prep Classes

Prepare for your CST Exam

If you have graduated from an accredited surgical tech program or are currently employed as a surgical technologist in an operating room, ambulatory surgical center, labor & delivery, or endoscopy unit in Massachusetts, then you are required to take the Certified Surgical Technologist (CST) Examination.

The course familiarizes prospective test takers with test preparation guidelines and procedures. The course will help people with test sections such as preoperative, intraoperative, and postoperative routines for surgical technologists. The course will look at the number of questions in each section, as well as question types, test format, and images listed on the national examination. The main emphasis is to build awareness about the test. Candidates must possess a thorough knowledge of medical terminology and anatomy & physiology before enrolling in the prep course.
